

"THE TRAVELING SALESMAN"

SCENE IN "THE TRAVELING SALESMAN."

"THE TRAVELING SALESMAN."

Manager Cheatham announces for Friday, October 4th, at the Grand Opera House, the latest comedy success, "The Traveling Salesman," by James Forbes, author of "The Chorus Lady." The fact that this play is the biggest laugh producer of the decade is a matter of universal knowledge.

For the first time in the history of the American stage, a play has been written which deals with the commercial traveler. It is of a character which breathes the clean, wholesome life of a jovial American, who sees many things of a humorous nature, as he goes through this world, and still is always ready to respond to any call for aid and quick to succor the distressed. It is no wonder that "The Traveling Salesman" has been acclaimed such a tremendous success because it conveys a message of mirth and merriment to the theatre-goers. It embodies no serious discussion of sex or topics of the day. It is a play intended by the author to amuse and entertain. The New York American in speaking of it said: "It is worth traveling miles to see." In fact every newspaper in the city of New York was loud in its praise, and that it was most popular with the general public is evidenced by the fact that it ran in the metropolitan for over nine months. It will be interpreted in this city by a company of more than usual ability, and scenically the production will be the same as shown in New York and Chicago. Among the members of the cast might be mentioned Robert Lee Allen, who gives an amusing and most enjoyable performance of Bob Blake, the drummer, and Rosalind Randolph, who will be seen in the difficult role of Beth Elliott, the ticket agent, with whom Blake falls in love.

FINE ACORNS

Mr. J. D. Cade, of Mt. Carmel, was in town Monday and exhibited some splendid specimens of acorns which grew upon oaks on his place. They are the largest we have ever seen. Mr. Cade is enthusiastic over the value of the acorns as fat-producers for swine. He took occasion to distribute a few of them among his friends here, to be planted.
